

Hello,

My name is Daniel Levi, and I am extremely pleased to have my precious free will taken away to voluntarily participate in another pyrmamid scheme promising to enrich and expand my almost non-existant business. As I rise and shine as a world-class entrepreneur, taking on any adequate business propositions and turning it into a thriving, one-of-a-kind, ten-figure net worth business, I intend to have Ellen Musk's financial stability, and to not have to look at the ever-rising prices of everyday products in a nearby store or market. Also not to forget respecting of previously inaccessible female individuals. When I enter the incredible world of the IT industry, I would wish to start developing colorful sites and designs where I can use my bottomless pool of creativity to its full potential. Having succeeded in that sphere, I will become even more famous, possessing such a skillset of controlling computers and bending their will to fuel my constant need for attention and approval. With that in mind, I think I will be an amazing addition to the team with the best chance of winning the Moonshot accelerator to make a childhood dream come true.